

Be My Valentine and You Can See My Sexy Photos

Okay, so I'm not the only lady who can look back and reminisce about 'that' relationship – you know the one where you thought that it would last forever and a few Polaroid shots later, a couple of years pass and you and your happy snapper are no more...

A decade on, you may wonder whether those rude images still exist [other than in a small part of your cranium], it is likely that you wish that they were destroyed during the dramatic break-up, along with any CDs, love notes, and foolish fantasies of walking down the aisle – dum dum da dum.

Even if you were much smoother, firmer and well, ten years younger – facts are facts, Polaroid snaps are far from flattering. Not to mention the dodgy angles, poor lighting, and memories of a guy you wish to forget. I'm sincerely hoping that my little mementoes are shredded, or better still, burnt!

I must however admit that as I'm getting old[er], I wouldn't mind looking back in another ten years at photographs of myself being sophisticatedly sexy as opposed to shockingly sordid. I mean having Pirelli Calendar-esque images rather than Sunday Sport pin-ups definitely appeals, something that is for your eyes only... and maybe another pair, if he's lucky. I love the Valentine's Day Offer from Prima Donna Studio. Have 45 minutes of hair, make-up and styling, followed by a 45-minute photo-shoot. Bring with you your favourite outfit or sexiest underwear, and create two perfect images to give as a gift to your loved one. The images will be given to you at the end of the shoot, on a disk... I would pay £60 to look good naked! It is available for the whole month of love – so who are you going to show your sexy photos to?
